Lehigh University Center for Ethics

Lehigh University Undergraduate Ethics Symposium
Open to all undergraduates at Lehigh University

Friday, April 17, 2020
RBC 241 | 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Ethical issues—about whether something is right or wrong, good or bad, just or unjust, harmful or helpful, worthy or unworthy, better or worse, appropriate or inappropriate—arise continually in every academic discipline and everyday life. Lehigh University’s Undergraduate Ethics Symposium offers students from all three colleges and all academic disciplines an opportunity to learn and engage in discussions with their peers about a variety of these issues. Students are encouraged to submit papers, presentations, posters, or other projects examining ethical issues in their fields, at college, or in today’s society, including issues concerning bioethics, business, technology, identity, the environment, social justice, engineering, medicine, science, race, gender, class, media, education, international relations, health, religion, societies and cultures, politics, college life, etc.

Prizes!
Three cash prizes of $200 each will be awarded for the best presentation by a student in each college.
One grand prize of $350 will be awarded for the best presentation of the entire symposium.

To Participate
Just upload a 300–400 word summary of your project to the symposium website. Be sure say what your topic is, what its ethical significance is, and what your presentation will focus on.
Please be sure to include your email address.
Presentations should last about ten (10) minutes.

Submissions will be accepted on the website until March 27, 2020
Email notification of acceptance April 4, 2020
